ABOUT CURTIS PARK

Curtis Park is a vibrant and historic neighborhood located in the heart of Denver, Colorado. It is a diverse community known for its beautiful Victorian architecture, small local businesses, and proximity to Downtown Denver. The area is easily accessible with its close ties to the I-25 and I-70 highways, making it a convenient locale for city workers. Notably, Curtis Park is the oldest neighborhood in Denver, imbued with a rich history that adds to its unique charm.

It is close to Downtown Denver, providing easy access to the city's amenities and job market. With many local businesses, there's a strong support for "shop local" culture which keeps the community close-knit and unique.

Curtis Park is minutes away from Coors Field, home of the Colorado Rockies baseball team. The neighborhood also features the Curtis Park Deli, a local favorite for sandwiches. For those interested in history and culture, the Black American West Museum is a short drive away.

Curtis Park offers a comfortable, urban-suburban mix lifestyle. Residents enjoy access to several parks, local eateries, and an active neighborhood association that organizes community events throughout the year. With its proximity to downtown and diversity of homes, Curtis Park attracts a blend of young professionals and families.
