6600 Lexington Avenue

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90038

On a quiet tree lined street within the Hollywood Media District (also known as LA's real Furniture and Art District), sits a corner two story building built in the 1930s, masterfully renovated and ready for occupancy in 2025.

Steeped in rich Hollywood history, the building was once home to various recording studios, an ad agency, film production offices, and most recently a multi-use creative space.

The nondescript facade ensures privacy and security, while the dynamic mix of neighbors including art galleries, showrooms, and creative offices draws in a refined and eclectic clientele.
