Philadelphia's Eds and Meds" Sector

In 2019, health care and education provided 242,800 jobs citywide in the public and private sectors, approximately onethird of all payroll employment in Philadelphia. In Center City, these sectors accounted for 18% of employment with 55,000 jobs. During the prior decade, private health care employment growth in Philadelphia reflected the expansion of ambulatory care services – offices of doctors and other health care practitioners, outpatient care centers, laboratories, and home health care services.

From 2009 to 2019, private ambulatory care employment increased 42%, while hospital employment increased 1% and nursing and residential care facilities declined 8%.

Center City's 12 institutions of higher education collectively enrolled 30,934 undergraduate and graduate students in the fall of 2019, including 16,000 at Community College of Philadelphia and 8,000 at Thomas Jefferson University. The Center City campuses of Drexel University and Temple University enrolled an additional 2,100 and 700, respectively. Including nearby institutions – Temple's main campus in North Philadelphia, and the University of Pennsylvania, Drexel University, and the University of the Sciences in University City – the total higher education enrollment in or near Center City exceeded 110,000 in 2019. While the pandemic forced many institutions to transition to virtual learning, colleges and universities located in or near Center City estimate that 80% of students who previously lived in Philadelphia on campus or off, returned to the city in fall 2020. The presence of students helped sustain both the apartment market and downtown retail, making up 13% of the adult population in Greater Center City.

Nearly half of recent college graduates have degrees in health, science, technology, engineering and math.

workers, creating a powerful lure for Philadelphia's growth industries. Health sciences are the major for 28% of local college graduates; science, technology engineering and math (STEM) accounts for another 20%; business degrees are earned by 19%.

A growing number of college graduates have been staying in Philadelphia, contributing to the 44% increase since 2000 in Greater Center City of residents in the 20-34 age group. They now number more than 70,000. In 2020, Philadelphia's research institutions attracted $1.1 billion in National Institutes of Health funding, the fourth-highest total among major U.S. cities.

Combined research spending at Drexel, Temple, Jefferson, and Penn totaled $2 billion in 2018. In 2020, the University of Pennsylvania, in partnership with Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and The Wistar Institute, began research on the health impacts of COVID-19 on children. These academic, research and medical institutions have helped Philadelphia emerge as a national center for life sciences, fostering new startups and attracting new businesses.

While most growth is concentrated in University City, several older buildings in Center City that can support heavy floor loads and have good ventilation are attracting lab space. Venture capital has played a large part in the explosive growth of these small labs.

According to Bridge Bank, in 2010 there were 113 deals in Philadelphia. That number surged to 260 in 2019 and reached a high of 221 in 2020, despite the pandemic. Health care and education have therefore remained not only a mainstay of today's economy, they are laying the groundwork for Philadelphia's next economy.

About the Neighborhood: South Philadelphia

South Philadelphia is surrounded by a wide variety of nearby destinations that enhance its livability and neighborhood charm. Just north of the stadium district, Passyunk Square centers around the iconic Singing Fountain and offers a lively mix of cafés, bakeries, and independent boutiques along East Passyunk Avenue. A few blocks west, the repurposed Bok Building serves as a creative and community hub with artist studios, small businesses, and a popular rooftop bar overlooking the city skyline. To the south, the expansive Philadelphia Navy Yard features landscaped waterfront paths, public art, fitness spaces, and seasonal events, creating a peaceful escape within minutes of residential streets. Toward the riverfront, residents can enjoy warm-weather pop-ups and hammocks at Spruce Street Harbor Park, while the adjacent neighborhood of Pennsport provides additional local restaurants, pubs, and historic churches. Everyday shopping and services are easily accessible at Whitman Plaza, adding further convenience. With quick access to Center City, the Delaware River, neighborhood parks, and an ever-growing list of dining and cultural spots, South Philadelphia places residents at the center of both established local favorites and continuously evolving urban attractions.

A major highlight of the area is the South Philadelphia Sports Complex, a nationally recognized cluster of professional sports venues that brings constant energy to the neighborhood. Within a few blocks sit Lincoln Financial Field, home of the Eagles, Citizens Bank Park, where the Phillies play, and Wells Fargo Center, hosting the 76ers, Flyers, major concerts, and large-scale events year-round. On game days and event nights, the surrounding streets come alive with fans, tailgates, and local food vendors, creating a festival-like atmosphere that is uniquely South Philly. The complex is easily accessible via Broad Street and the Broad Street Line subway, making it simple for residents and visitors alike to enjoy professional sports and entertainment just minutes from neighborhood homes and restaurants.
