Incentives Overview

South Carolina Business Incentives

Lower Operating Costs

South Carolina's tax structure creates meaningful savings for businesses:

- No Statewide Property Tax – South Carolina does not levy a state-level property tax. Property taxes are imposed only at the county and municipal level, where eligible companies can negotiate abatements or Fee-in-Lieu of Taxes (FILOT) agreements.
- No Inventory Tax – Manufacturers and distributors are not taxed on inventory.
- No Local Income Tax – Cities and counties cannot impose local income taxes.
- No Wholesale Tax – Wholesale transactions are not subject to additional tax.
- Sales Tax Exemptions for Manufacturers – State sales tax does not apply to manufacturing machinery, industrial power or raw materials used in production.

Property Tax Incentives

- Fee-in-Lieu of Taxes (FILOT): Eligible companies investing $2.5 million or more can negotiate a FILOT agreement with counties. This typically reduces the property tax assessment ratio from 10.5% (standard manufacturing) to as low as 6% or 4%, and can be locked in for up to 30 years.
- Five-Year Property Tax Abatement: Eligible manufacturers investing at least $50,000, and corporate headquarters investing $50,000 or more while creating 75+ new jobs in Year 1, receive a five-year abatement on the county portion of property taxes (county operating millage).

Performance-Based Incentives

- Enterprise Program: Eligible companies can receive direct cash contributions from the state to offset project costs such as land, building construction or site development.
- Job Development Credits (JDC): Eligible companies creating new full-time jobs with healthcare benefits can be reimbursed for approved expenditures, including infrastructure, building and site-related costs.

Long-Term Stability

- For qualifying projects, FILOT agreements and abatements provide predictable and reduced property tax costs for up to 30 years, giving companies long-term certainty for planning and operations.
