OVERVIEW

Bojax Date Orchard - Farmland Investment Opportunity in Imperial, California

The Imperial Valley supports approximately 527,000 harvested acres and generates roughly $2.49 billion in annual agricultural output, remaining a cornerstone of production in the southwestern U.S. agricultural market and underscoring its continued strength despite recent water and acreage constraints in other irrigation districts. Bojax Date Orchard offers investors a unique opportunity to capitalize on the growing demand for emerging date varieties.

Location & Growing Conditions

Bojax Date Orchard benefits from several key advantages:

- Reliable water access through the Imperial Irrigation District (IID), supported by Priority 1 Colorado River rights dating back to 1895.
- Ideal growing conditions, including a warm climate, fertile soils, and minimal rainfall.
- A strategic location that provides efficient access to both labor and export markets.
