VALLEY CENTER OVERVIEW

Valley Center is a census-designated Community Plan Area in northern San Diego County, characterized by its unique topographic features, its agricultural activities and its predominance of estate residential development. The rural character of the community results from the low population density and the prevalence of large areas of open space provided by agriculture. The suburb of has a population of 11,320.

Living in Valley Center offers residents a rural feel and most residents own their homes. In Valley Center there are a lot of parks. The public schools in Valley Center are above average. Although the town of Valley Center is full of open spaces, thanks to the area's agriculture and canyon preserve, it's less than 40 miles away from the downtown area of San Diego. This makes it around a 45-minute drive, which isn't a bad commute for people who work in the city `proper but want to live in a more rural area, meaning that it is peaceful and there are no city lights. The community of Valley Center was a sleepy agricultural area until two casinos opened nearby. This led to some additional development of the area since people had more of a reason to visit the town. One of these casinos, Harrah's Resort Southern California, has what it boasts as being the area's first-ever swim up bar. It also has a 400-foot-long river that visitors can float down, as well as live entertainment and more. You don't need to gamble to have a good time here. It's small town, country living with modern amenities.

Home buyers will be able to find what they're looking for – and at prices that they want to pay. Valley Center is one of the most beautiful areas of North San Diego County with large horse properties and many with gorgeous views. It is a lovely country town that is growing every day with great neighborhoods and community minded neighbors.
