A local hotspot for crime is on its way to becoming part of the University of New Mexico's effort to revamp the South Campus area.

UNM regents last month acquired the Motel 6 on Avenida Cesar Chavez for $5 million following years of what officials described as criminal activity that posed a threat to the safety of students and the surrounding community. Demolishing the motel, university officials say, is a key step toward redeveloping the area into a vibrant hub for food, retail and housing.
