NYC PRIME LOCATION

2,000+ SF

Designed for Culinary Success

Every great pizzeria begins with the right infrastructure — and 162 Third Avenue has it all already in place. This space eliminates the costly buildout phase, allowing an operator to focus on what matters most: crafting exceptional food and building a loyal clientele.

Gas Line

Commercial-grade gas line already installed and ready to power high-output pizza ovens and cooking equipment.

HVAC System

Fully operational heating, ventilation, and air conditioning system ensures year-round comfort for staff and guests alike.

Cooking Vent

Commercial cooking vent installed — a critical and expensive component that is already code-compliant and operational.

Basement Storage

Generous basement storage space supports high-volume inventory, dry goods, and back-of-house operations with ease.

The Location Advantage

Third Avenue is one of Manhattan's most dynamic and high-traffic commercial corridors, drawing a dense mix of residents, office workers, and visitors every single day. 162 Third Avenue sits at the intersection of foot traffic, visibility, and neighborhood density – precisely the trifecta that drives restaurant success in New York City.

High Foot Traffic

Consistent daily pedestrian volume from morning through late evening creates natural, recurring customer exposure for a pizzeria concept.

Dense Residential Base

Surrounded by a thriving residential population that demands quality, convenient dining options – a built-in customer base from day one.

Prime Street Visibility

Ground-floor retail frontage on Third Avenue delivers maximum brand visibility and walk-in potential for any restaurant concept.
