Private Sanctuary

Just 18 miles north of Santa Fe, Tierra Sagrada is a one-of-a-kind retreat set amid the tranquil beauty of the Pojoaque Valley, where sweeping views of the Sangre de Cristo and Jemez Mountains meet the dramatic Barrancas badlands. Designed and built between 1995 and 2000, the approximately 9,000-square-foot estate blends Spanish Hacienda architecture with subtle Asian, Moroccan, and Indonesian influences, creating an atmosphere of serenity, reflection, and timeless design. Thoughtfully arranged around peaceful courtyards, flagstone pathways, mature cottonwoods, fruit trees, and water features, the property includes a six-bedroom Hacienda, a private three-bedroom Casita, and an architecturally striking retreat center.

At its heart is a soaring ceremonial hall crowned by an octagonal stained-glass dome depicting the "Evolutionary Path of the Human Soul," complemented by a Japanese-inspired kitchen and dining room, healing rooms, workshop space, and inviting gathering areas.

Zoned for a variety of permitted uses—including a private residence or family compound, retreat center, religious facility, agricultural use, and other potential uses with county approval—the property offers remarkable flexibility. A private well serves the estate, and an adjacent 8+ acre irrigated field is available for purchase separately. Whether envisioned as a private sanctuary, wellness destination, or legacy estate, Tierra Sagrada offers an extraordinary opportunity to own one of Northern New Mexico's most distinctive properties.
