Investment Highlights

As the exclusive representative of the seller, Colliers is pleased to present for sale to qualified investors the Motel 6 Airport (the "Hotel" or "Property"), a well-located, 109-key, limited-service hotel in Bakersfield, California. This Motel 6 is being offered at $4,295,000, or approximately $39,403 per key, representing a rare value-add opportunity in a growing Central Valley market with solid operating fundamentals and long-term demand drivers.

The Hotel is located at 5241 Olive Tree Ct, just off Highway 99 at Olive Dr, a major north-south California corridor that sees significant daily traffic volume and provides direct access to downtown Bakersfield and surrounding business centers. This two-story asset is only 1 mile away from Meadows Field Airport (BFL), and minutes away major event venues like Rabobank Arena, and key cultural and educational institutions, including California State University, Bakersfield.

Property amenities include an outdoor pool, truck parking, vending machines, coin laundry, pet-friendly accommodations, and free high-speed internet throughout. The guestroom mixes features 49 Queen rooms, 53 double bedrooms, and 7 ADA-compliant rooms.

This property requires no Property Improvement Plan (PIP). The hotel underwent a full renovation in 2022. All guest rooms and common areas have been refreshed for a cleaner look. Buyers can step into a turnkey investment with no immediate capital needs.

The Bakersfield market has emerged as a strong secondary hub in California's Central Valley, driven by logistics, agriculture, energy, and education. Employers in the region include Chevron, Dignity Health, Kern Medical Center, and major warehousing and distribution operations. The local economy is supported by a growing population base and consistent visitor traffic, both commercial and leisure.

The Hotel is also favorably positioned within a short drive to The Marketplace at Seven Oaks, one of the city's premier shopping and dining destinations, as well as recreational landmarks such as Kern River and Buck Owens' Crystal Palace.

A buyer with a strategic repositioning plan and effective marketing could further grow market share and increase both top-line performance and asset value. This is an excellent opportunity to acquire an economy branded asset with strong upside in a growing California market

Location Overview

Bakersfield, California

In 2025, the population of Bakersfield is estimated at approximately 415,600, reflecting consistent growth of nearly 20% since 2010. The population is relatively young, with a median age of 31.9 years, compared to the national average of 39.0. Bakersfield is also one of California's most ethnically diverse mid-sized cities, with a large Hispanic/Latino population and growing multicultural representation. The city maintains a population density of approximately 2,700 people per square mile, offering a blend of urban access and suburban character.

There are an estimated 281,000 households in the Bakersfield metro area. The number of households has increased steadily over the past decade, driven by regional economic expansion and housing affordability compared to coastal California. The average household size is 2.9 people, and homeownership rates remain high at roughly 59.8%, reinforcing long-term residential stability. The median home value in 2025 is approximately $316,000, significantly more affordable than the statewide median, which continues to attract new residents and workforce housing demand.

Employment in Bakersfield is supported by a well-balanced mix of industries, including agriculture, oil and energy, transportation and logistics, healthcare, and education. Key employers include Chevron, Kern Medical, Adventist Health, the Kern High School District, and California State University, Bakersfield. The city's average commute time is about 24.4 minutes, with the majority of workers commuting by personal vehicle. As of 2025, the unemployment rate is trending near pre-pandemic levels, with continued recovery across service sectors.

The median household income in Bakersfield for 2025 is estimated at $77,397, which marks steady growth over the past several years. The per capita income stands at approximately $46,145, with ongoing gains supported by public infrastructure investment, small business development, and agricultural export activity. While still below statewide income levels, Bakersfield's cost of living and relative affordability create a favorable balance for working families.

In terms of education, Bakersfield remains on par with many Central Valley communities. Around 22% of residents over age 25 hold a bachelor's degree or higher, with associate degree and vocational program completion rates above the national average. The presence of California State University, Bakersfield and Bakersfield College supports a stable academic base and drives demand from both student and visiting faculty lodging.

Overall, Bakersfield's demographic and economic indicators point to a resilient, steadily growing market with expanding housing development, industrial growth, and strong demand for affordable hospitality options. The city's central location, strong transportation access, and multi-industry employment base make it well-positioned for continued investment in limited-service and midscale lodging assets.
