Where Jackson Square, Chinatown, and the North Financial District Intersect.

Nestled at the crossroads of three iconic San Francisco neighborhoods—Jackson Square, Chinatown, and the North Financial District—enjoying a prime location rich in history, culture, and vibrancy.

To the north lies Jackson Square, a neighborhood steeped in history with charming tree-lined streets and beautifully preserved 19th-century architecture. This elegant enclave is home to luxury brands like Ralph Lauren, Paul Smith, and Aesop, alongside celebrated dining establishments such as Maison Nico, Cotogna, and Kusakabe, making it a destination for discerning shoppers and food enthusiasts alike.

To the west, Chinatown bursts with energy, offering a feast for the senses with its vibrant colors, savory dumpling and pastry shops, and a deeply rooted cultural community. This lively neighborhood hosts seasonal events and remains a year-round tourist magnet, showcasing the city's rich heritage.

To the south and east lies the North Financial District, the beating heart of San Francisco's business world. During the week, the area hums with activity as office workers fill its towering skyscrapers, often spilling into nearby restaurants and bars to unwind after a productive day.

This dynamic confluence of neighborhoods positions the property as a rare opportunity to cater to a diverse and ever-changing customer base while taking full advantage of the amenities and energy these surrounding areas offer.
