Built in 1927, Fire Station No. 7 originally operated as a fire house until the 1970s. The project restored and reconfigured the building for office and retail use. It is now on the National Register of Historic Places.

Location

Fire Station No. 7 is conveniently located in Portland's Buckman neighborhood on the Central Eastside. Ample food and entertainment amenities are within walking distance including Soho House Portland, Revolution Hall and numerous other bars, restaurants, breweries and cafes. The property is also across the street from the Pan Y Pueblo Food Cart Pod anchored by Dos Hermanos bakery which also features one of their popular restaurants. This central location provides easy access throughout the entire Portland metro area.
