Market Overview

Market Overview

With a high quality-of-life and low cost-of-business, Louisville is an excellent city to grow a business. The Louisville MSA's labor force has increased by approximately 50,000 workers in the last 5 years, and the number is only expected to grow.

Well known as the home of Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Derby, Louisville offers a vibrant, internationally linked business community and nationally ranked healthcare industry. The city is the corporate base of Humana Inc., ScionHealth, and YUM! Brands Inc. (parent of KFC, Pizza Hut and Taco Bell), all Fortune 500 companies.

The best prospects for growth are in finance, where insurers will benefit from nationwide healthcare trends, and logistics. Low-cost infrastructure and favorable population trends will help the metro area keep pace with the nation longer term.

Louisville is one of the nation's most important manufacturing and logistics hubs, with jobs in these sectors representing about 35% of jobs in the Louisville-Jefferson County MSA, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Centrally located to 70% of the U.S. market and home to the UPS Worldport, it's no secret why companies continue to flock to the Louisville-Jefferson County area.

Notable Industries

Louisville's dynamic economy is propelled by five major sectors: Healthcare & Aging Innovation, Logistics, Food & Beverage, Advanced Manufacturing, and Business Services.

HEALTHCARE & AGING INNOVATION

Dubbed “America's Aging Care Capital” by Forbes, Louisville is home to the largest concentration of aging care headquarters in the country. This has attracted companies like ScionHealth to the city. The opportunities for growth in this sector are significant when considering UPS Worldport's strong medical logistics capabilities, with 3 million square feet of temperature-controlled space.

The city has a growing health innovation startup scene that supports businesses of all sizes. Organizations like Aging2.0, The Hive, the University of Louisville Trager Institute, and The Thrive Center are working to accelerate and showcase solutions in health and aging technology.

The Louisville Healthcare CEO Council is a group of CEOs from major companies that collectively impact over 100 million people, generate $150 billion in revenue, and employ 450,000 people. This group helps create economic opportunities for smaller companies and supports a culture of innovation driven by startups.

LOGISTICS

Optimally situated on the Banks of the Ohio River and less than a day's drive away from two thirds of the US population, Louisville is America's prime logistics center. With access to three major interstates, four rail operators, the Ohio River with two public ports and 41 private terminals, and a top five world's busiest cargo operation in Louisville Muhammad Ali International Airport, the city is exceptionally serviced by each road, rail, river, and air. Louisville's logistics sector is more than twice as large as the US average and is expected to grow up to 30% in the next ten years.

UPS's Worldport is revolutionizing the logistics industry, and subsequently the industries that rely on it. Pharmaceutical companies are using its temperature-controlled spaces to expedite lab testing, and car parts be manufactured and shipped for just-in-time delivery. Worldport processes more than 400,000 packages per hour in the world's largest sorting facility.

FOOD & BEVERAGE

Louisville is a central hub for food and beverage companies of all sizes, employing over 15,000 people in headquartered operations, with over 125 companies in the city. Every aspect of the industry is supported, including headquarters, marketing, production, manufacturing, beverage development, distribution, and growth or acquisition support. A start-up or mid-sized company can develop a beverage concept at Flavorman, work with food color innovation at D.D. Williamson, source ingredients locally, test product safety at Eurofins, purchase equipment from Winston Industries, and design packaging at Premier Packaging – all within the city. No other city offers this level of resources and talent in such a concentrated area.

The city's signature industry within this sector is bourbon. 95% of the world's bourbon is made in Kentucky, so it's no wonder how bourbon distilleries brought in 2.5 million visitors to the state in 2023. Kentucky's bourbon industry has bloomed to $9 billion, generating over 20,000 jobs.

ADVANCED MANUFACTURING

Named a “Top City for Manufacturing” by Forbes, Louisville hosts over 1,500 manufacturers employing over 78,000 people. Notable companies include industry giants Ford Motor Company, whose Kentucky Truck Plant employs over 9,000 people, and GE Appliances, which is proudly headquartered in Louisville.

Louisville has a long-standing presence in manufacturing, which serves as the foundation for our leadership in the new era of flexible, advanced manufacturing. The city's strong manufacturing environment makes it easier for new companies to establish themselves with the support of a skilled workforce. With our road, river, and global air logistics, businesses can make products here and ship them anywhere. Additionally, the University of Louisville offers local companies access to their state-of-the-art R&D facilities that support innovation in manufacturing.

BUSINESS SERVICES

This industry, which includes technical, legal, financial, human resources, marketing, and real estate firms, employs 30,000 people in the region. It has been growing consistently in Greater Louisville and is projected to expand by another 20 percent over the next 10 years. With technology enabling work from almost anywhere, Louisville offers businesses and workers a competitive edge. The city combines a high quality of life with a cost-effective structure, making it an ideal location for both.

Notable Employers

UPS (UNITED PARCEL SERVICE)

UPS's 5.2M SF Worldport at Louisville International Airport is the largest fully automated package handling facility in the world. It employs 25,000 directly and supports at least 35,000 indirect jobs in the area, making it the largest Louisville employer by far. More than 200 companies have relocated to Louisville for its proximity to UPS.

GE APPLIANCES

Appliance Park, the 750-acre global headquarters of GE Consumer & Industrial in south central Louisville, is so large it has its own zip code. In June 2025, GE announced a $490M investment into the site which will see washer and dryer production move from China to Louisville. This is the largest investment in the company's history and will create 800 new full-time jobs.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Ford operates two plants in Louisville that collectively employ 11,481 workers. In 2025, the company announced it is investing $2B in transforming their Louisville Assembly Plant to allow for electric vehicle production. Additionally, Ford has begun production of automotive batteries at their 1,500-acre megasite in Glendale, Kentucky, just an hour from downtown Louisville. The battery plant is a nearly $6B investment and is expected to create an additional 5,000 jobs.

TEXAS ROADHOUSE

Since being founded in 1993, Texas Roadhouse has proudly called Louisville home. In August 2025, the company announced it was purchasing the buildings where it has been operating its corporate headquarters for $25M, further cementing its commitment to the city. Across its family of brands, Texas Roadhouse runs 800 restaurants globally.

NORTON HEALTHCARE

With 22,247 employees, Norton Healthcare is Louisville's second-largest employer. In November 2024, Norton opened its new $90M hospital in west Louisville as part of Goodwill Industries' 20-acre "opportunity campus." The site also includes Goodwill's headquarters and offices for other local social service agencies.

The two-story, over 86,500-square-foot facility provides service for 24/7 EMS, inpatient treatment, operating rooms, laboratory services, imaging including X-ray, ultrasound, CT and MRI, and retail pharmacy. The hospital employs specialists in cardiology, endocrinology, orthopedics, pulmonology, surgery, women's care, oncology/hematology, neurology, and neurosurgery.
