Why The Midline

The name “The Midline” reflects the project's strategic position—centered between major employment hubs, transportation routes, established neighborhoods, and Cleveland's next wave of industrial redevelopment. Located along the Opportunity Corridor, the site offers a rare urban build-to-suit option with the visibility, access, and flexibility companies need to grow with confidence.

The Opportunity Corridor was created to better connect Cleveland's east side with University Circle, I-490, I-77, and the broader regional transportation network. The Midline benefits from that connectivity while offering businesses a location close to workforce, customers, institutional anchors, suppliers, and the city's growing economic development activity.

Modern Building Amenities

The Midline can be designed around the user—not forced into a one-size-fits-all building. From office layout and loading configuration to clear height, lighting, parking, and employee spaces, the project offers flexibility for companies that want a facility built around how they actually operate.

- Build-to-suit office space designed around team size, workflow, and customer-facing needs
- Modern warehouse or production layout with efficient circulation
- Dock and drive-in loading options to suit shipping and receiving requirements
- Clear height, column spacing, and bay design tailored to operations
- LED lighting for bright, efficient, low-maintenance workspaces
- ESFR sprinkler options to support modern industrial needs
- Energy-conscious building systems and high-quality construction
- Employee parking, visitor parking, and truck circulation planned for safety
- Attractive exterior design with professional curb appeal
- Potential outdoor areas for employee breaks and site identity

The Midline is more than available land—it is a modern industrial opportunity in the middle of Cleveland's next chapter. With flexible build-to-suit sizing, strong access, urban workforce connectivity, and a location along a major redevelopment corridor, The Midline gives companies the chance to create a facility that fits today and supports tomorrow.
