DIGITAL TRANSITION PAVES WAY FOR RECORD-SETTING PERMITS, INSPECTIONS

Delaware County Building Safety set a new record for inspections performed and permits issued in 2024.

After rolling out a fully electronic document and scheduling system a year earlier, the department logged 36,789 inspections, a 10% increase.

The department also issued a record number of permits, bolstered by commercial building demand, a category in which the number of permits issued reached a seven-year high in 2024.

Flood rate maps for Delaware County were updated in 2024 after completion of a flood study the prior year.

The Ohio Building Code was also updated in 2024 as part of a state initiative to reform the Ohio Administrative Code by targeting duplicative provisions, outdated sections and unnecessary requirements.

Just 30 minutes north of Columbus, Delaware offers the perfect mix of small-town charm and big-city convenience. With a growing population, strong local economy, and vibrant downtown, it's a great place to live, work, and do business. Home to Ohio Wesleyan University and a variety of shops, restaurants, and parks, Delaware is a thriving community that continues to grow.
