Site background

Llancaiach Fawr has a long and interesting history with the Manor being built in the early 16th century. The property has been occupied throughout, from a defendable fortified Manor house, to rustic farmhouse, to more recently a visitor attraction. It is understood that there was an earlier dwelling on the site, either underneath the present house or possibly incorporated within the eastern end of the building.

Location

Llancaiach Fawr is in a picturesque and lovely rural setting, situated in Southeast Wales in the small valley of the Nant Caiach, on the northern edge the village of Nelson, accessed off the B4254 close to the A472.

It sits some five miles north of Caerphilly and ten miles north of Cardiff, at the lower end of the Taff Bargoed Valley, and lies adjacent to Treharris, Trelewis and Quakers Yard.

The Manor House

Listed buildings report →

The report includes a detailed description of the manor

Originally built c.1550, the beautiful Manor has been carefully restored as it was in 1645 when King Charles I visited to rally support for the Royalist cause during the Civil Wars of the 17th Century.

It benefits from accessible attics and a vaulted cellar (plan attached), and the new staircase tower (constructed 2013 – 2015 houses a staircase and lift) ensures that the manor house is almost fully accessible for wheelchairs users. (There are only two rooms on the middle floor and the attic spaces require visitors to use stairs)

Gardens

To the front of the Manor are attractive formal walled gardens adjacent to the Nant Caeach stream. To the rear of the property is a small orchard, a physic and kitchen garden featuring species of plants, fruits and vegetables from 1645 or earlier. A small bothy area containing two greenhouses is hidden from view and is currently used to store gardening equipment.

The lighting and heating in the manor were also updated during the building works and slate roof reinstated.
