ABOUT THE AREA LEXINGTON, GA

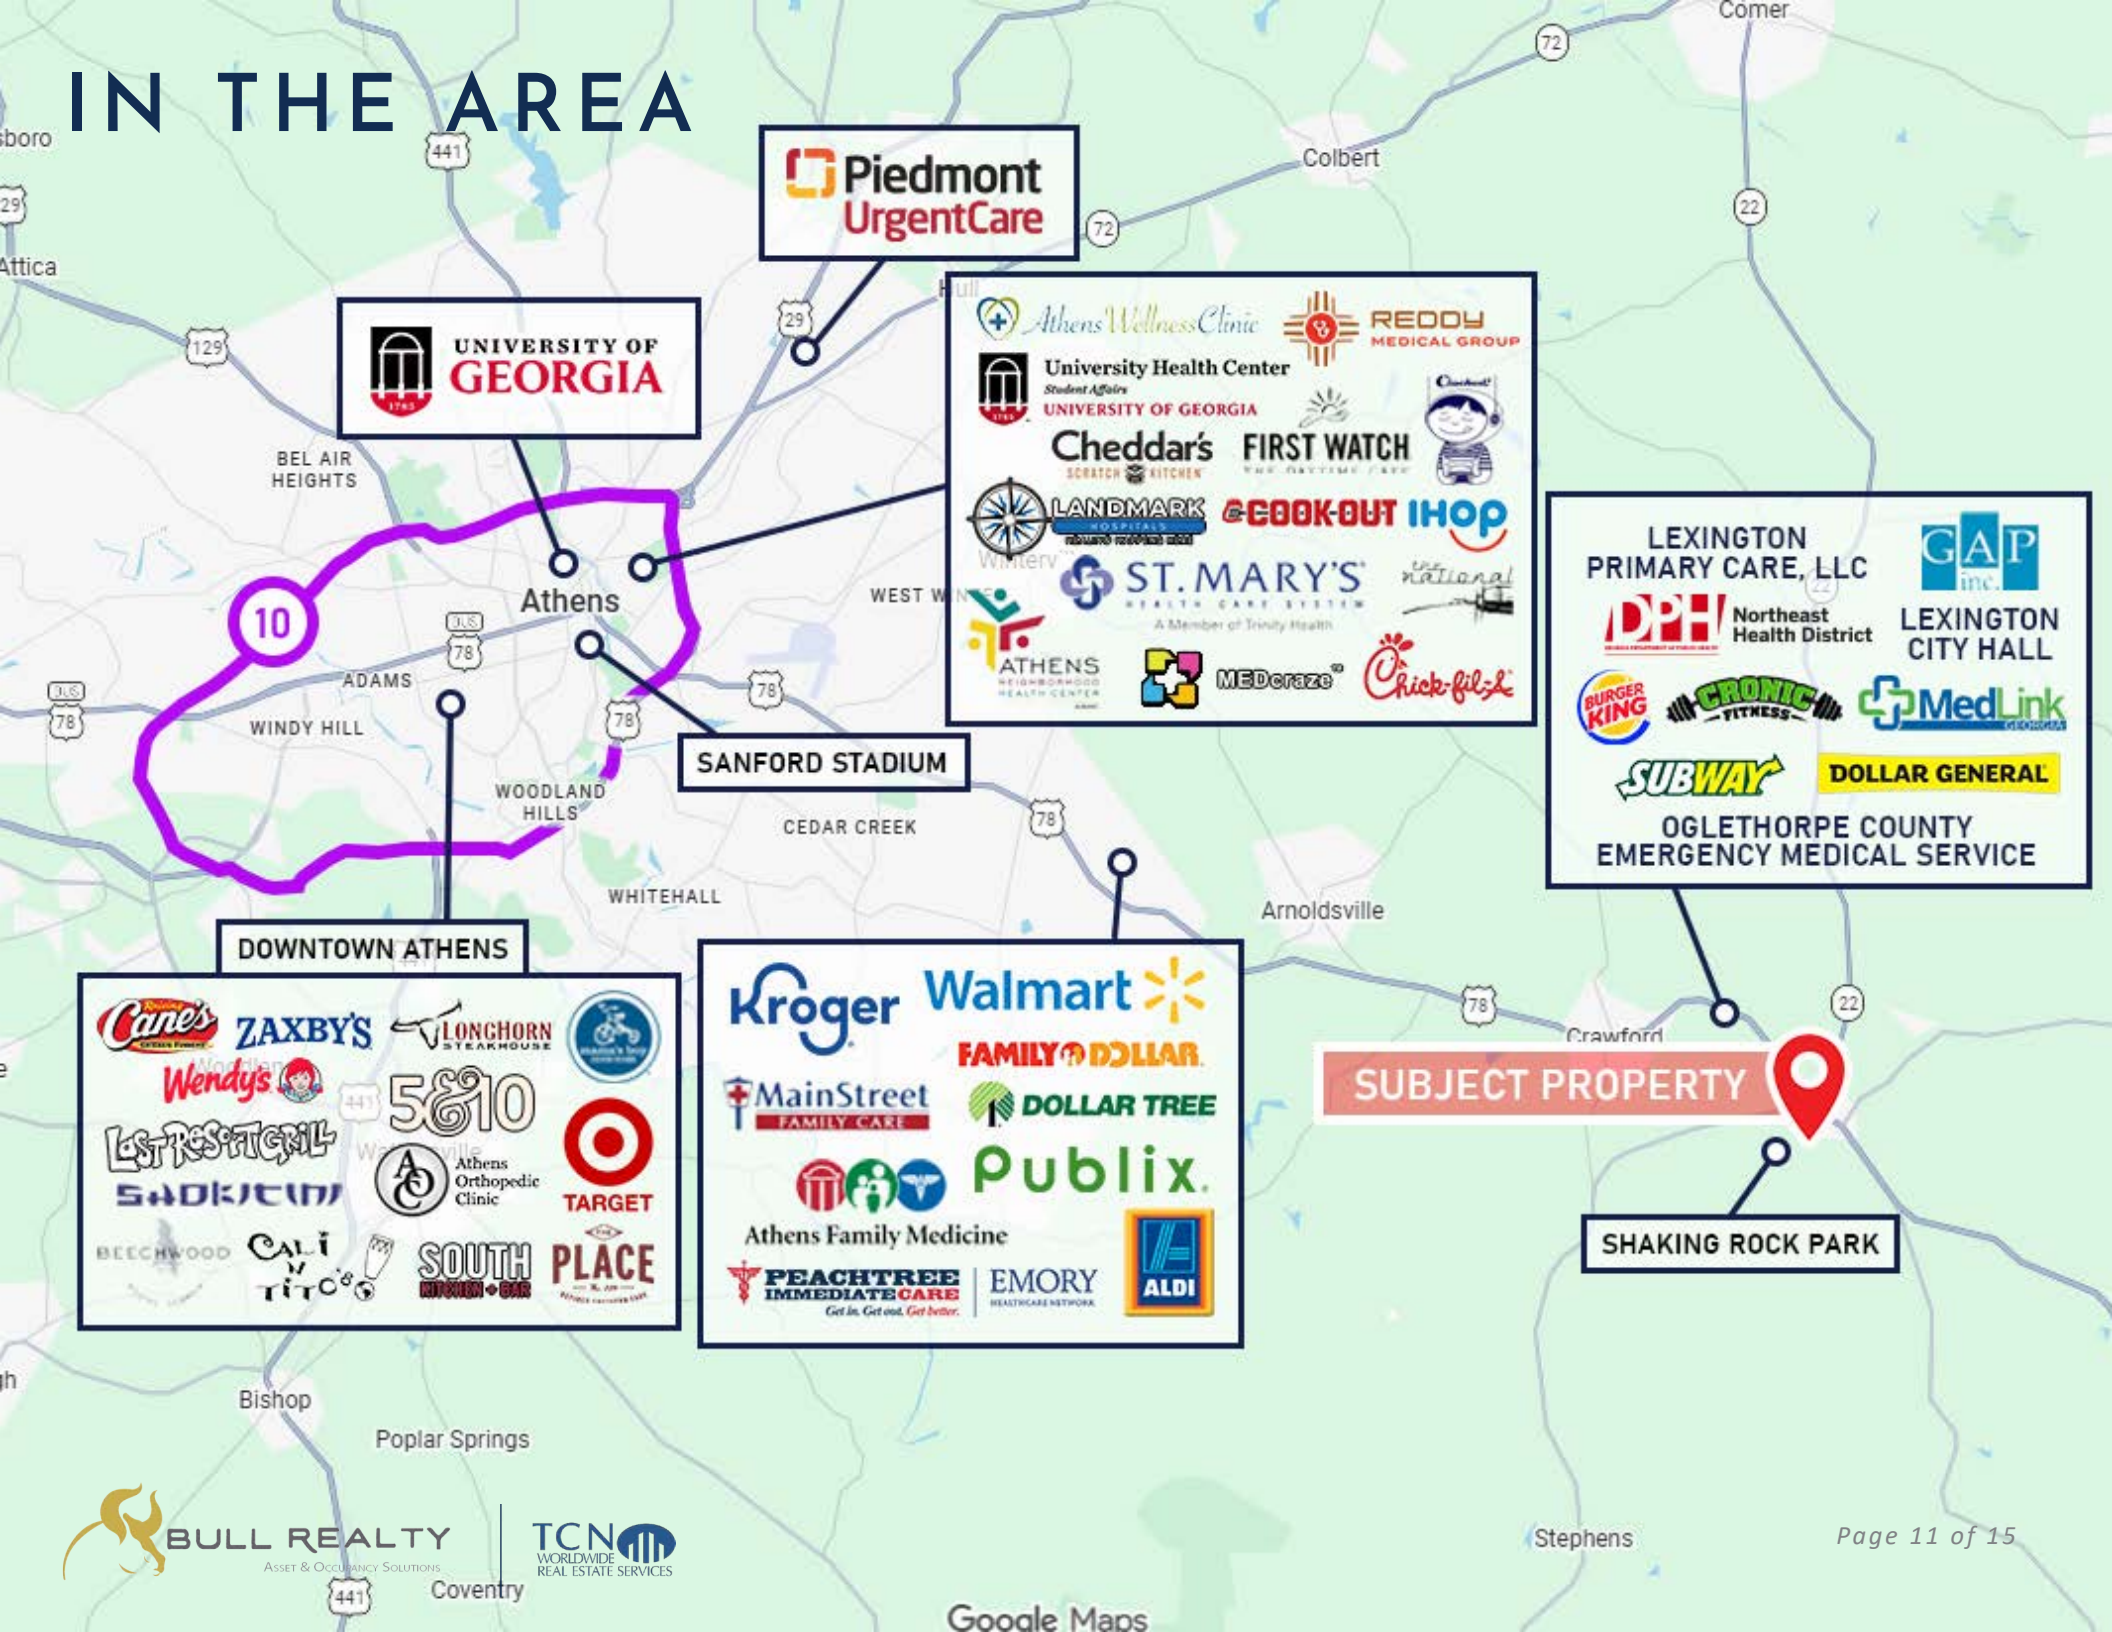

Lexington, Georgia is a charming historic community and the county seat of Oglethorpe County, offering a rare blend of architectural heritage and small-town Southern character. Established in the late 18th century, the city grew around its traditional courthouse square and today remains one of northeast Georgia's best preserved examples of a 19th-century county seat. Much of Lexington is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, featuring Greek Revival, Federal, Victorian, and Italianate homes that line quiet, tree-shaded streets and spacious residential lots. With a population just over 200, the town provides a peaceful, close-knit atmosphere that appeals to those seeking privacy, history, and a slower pace of life.

Located along U.S. Highway 78 approximately 17 miles from Athens, Lexington offers convenient access to the cultural, educational, and medical amenities of the Athens market while maintaining its rural identity.
