Description

Since 1881, this Grade II listed warehouse has been recognised as one of the most architecturally exceptional Shoreditch buildings. The Harrison makes sure it stays that way.

Built together, through a collaborative partnership of industry leaders. Remembering the past, enhancing the present and protecting the future, to create a workplace that is holistically sustainable, crafted, and simply charming – on every level.

At the epicentre of Shoreditch, The Harrison is still considered one of the finest examples of Victorian engineering prowess. Originally designed by Richard Crease Harrison & Son, the warehouse and showroom was built as a single block between 1881 and 1882. In 1887, it was developed further and extended. Furniture of all types has been manufactured and distributed throughout the British Empire from this very building

The Harrison enhances and celebrates original features and London stock brickwork, while making sure the building speaks to its modern surroundings. Each space is entirely unique, having been restored in such a way as to capture the distinctive character of the original design. To achieve the unexpected, Anomaly redefined the concept of sustainability, putting environmental considerations at the heart of every decision.
