MARKET OVERVIEW

EAST HOLLYWOOD

Located in the middle of the cultural center of Los Angeles, East Hollywood is a flourishing transit-connected market driven by one of the most renter-dense populations in the city.

Stretching east from the core of Hollywood toward the Silver Lake and Los Feliz corridors, East Hollywood is a densely populated neighborhood that has evolved into one of Central Los Angeles' most vibrant markets. Notable for being the site of Los Angeles City College, Barnsdall Art Park, and a prominent hospital district, East Hollywood offers a central hub for those seeking an urban community at the heart of the city.

The neighborhood's eclectic blend of cultural diversity, standout culinary experiences, and a thriving arts scene attract a growing wave of young professionals, creatives, and healthcare and education workers who value urban walkability, community character, and unmatched regional connectivity.

Bounded roughly by the Hollywood Hills and Los Feliz to the north, Silver Lake to the east, Koreatown and Hancock Park to the south, and the core of Hollywood to the west, the neighborhood is defined by its walkable urban infrastructure, diverse resident base, and unmatched access to regional employment and transit.

86% of East Hollywood's residents are renters, making it one of the most renter-dominant submarkets in the entire city – a characteristic that reflects its enduring appeal to the workforce-age renters who make up the backbone of the city's labor economy and a compelling environment for multifamily investment.

EAST HOLLYWOOD OVERVIEW

Set in Central Los Angeles, East Hollywood residents enjoy easy access to Hollywood's nightlife, Koreatown's dining scene, and Los Feliz's indie theaters and shops. Its central location and close proximity to trendy neighborhoods makes East Hollywood a magnet for young professionals and those seeking a sense of community in the heart of LA.

East Hollywood's employment ecosystem is anchored by one of the most concentrated medical districts in Central Los Angeles. The neighborhood is home to Hollywood Presbyterian Medical Center, Kaiser Permanente Los Angeles, and Children's Hospital Los Angeles, collectively representing thousands of full-time employees who live and work in the immediate area. Los Angeles City College, located in the heart of the neighborhood, further reinforces sustained renter demand from faculty, staff, and students.

"86% of East Hollywood's residents are renters, making it one of the most renter-dominant submarkets in the entire city."

The Metro B Line has multiple stops in East Hollywood: Vermont/Sunset, Vermont/Santa Monica, and Hollywood/Western, providing residents with regional mobility throughout the city. Most significantly, the Metro D Line Extension's Section 1 opened for regular service on May 8, 2026, ahead of the FIFA World Cup, adding new underground stations along Wilshire Boulevard that serve Koreatown, Miracle Mile, Hancock Park, and the gateway to Beverly Hills – connecting East Hollywood riders directly westward for the first time.

EAST HOLLYWOOD POINTS OF INTEREST

BARNSDALL ART PARK

Perched atop Olive Hill in East Hollywood, Barnsdall Art Park spreads across 11.5 acres of cultural and recreational space, offering panoramic views of the Hollywood Hills, Griffith Park, the Griffith Observatory, and the Hollywood sign.

LARCHMONT VILLAGE

Larchmont Village is the main shopping, socializing, and eating hub: picturesque, high-end, and especially walkable. Larchmont Village features a tight cluster of more than 50 shops and restaurants, with a strong emphasis on independent businesses.

MELROSE HILL

East Hollywood's Melrose Hill district, centered at Melrose and Western Avenues, has emerged as one of LA's buzziest culinary destinations, with brick buildings housing a tight cluster of casual restaurants and destination retail. The Melrose/Western corridor represents one of the most active nodes of new residential and retail investment in Central Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES CITY COLLEGE

One of the largest community colleges in California, LACC sits at the heart of East Hollywood and serves over 16,000 students. The campus generates consistent year-round renter demand in the immediate trade area and provides a base of educated, workforce-age residents that underpins neighborhood retail and services.

METRO B + D LINES & NORMANDIE AVE

The Metro B Line's Vermont/Sunset and Vermont/Santa Monica subway stations provide direct regional transit access to Downtown Los Angeles, the Westside, and the San Fernando Valley, while the recently opened Metro D Line Extension connects East Hollywood riders directly to Koreatown, Miracle Mile, Hancock Park, and Beverly Hills. The Normandie corridor itself sits at the center of this transit web, within walking distance of multiple bus lines and a short connection to the B and D Line subway system.

KOREATOWN

Located west of Downtown Los Angeles and south of Hollywood, Koreatown encompasses roughly three square miles and is home to one of the largest concentrations of restaurants, nightclubs, and 24-hour businesses in the country. Koreatown functions as an extension of East Hollywood's already robust amenity base, adding a dense nearby layer of retail, dining, and services.

HOSPITAL DISTRICT

East Hollywood's hospital district, anchored by Hollywood Presbyterian Medical Center, Kaiser Permanente Los Angeles, and Children's Hospital Los Angeles, represents a major employment cluster. Healthcare workers make up a significant segment of the neighborhood's renter base, supporting stable occupancy and consistent demand for well-located housing inventory.
