USE CASES AND TENANT PROFILES

Two distinct tenant paths

The flexible configuration serves two scales of tenant. A smaller operator can take one suite, while a larger user can take the full block. Both benefit from drive-in access, working clear height, and a functional shop layout. Specific uses remain subject to municipal zoning verification.

TRACK 1 | THE SINGLE-SUITE OPERATOR

RIGHT-SIZED OPERATING FOOTPRINT

At 4,650 or 6,050 square feet, one suite suits a contractor, service business, or specialty shop that needs working space, secure storage, and a road-visible address. Base rent starts at $2,519 per month plus NNN.

CANDIDATE TENANTS

- Contractor needing shop space, storage, and vehicle access.
- Automotive service or specialty shop.
- Equipment sales and service operation.
- Service business or flex office and industrial user.

WHY THE SPACE FITS

- Right-Sized Entry: Avoid paying for unused square footage.
- Drive-In Access: Move vehicles, equipment, and materials inside.
- Road Presence: M-24 frontage creates a visible address.
- Ready Now: Immediate occupancy supports a faster move.

TRACK 2 | THE FULL-BLOCK USER

ONE CONTIGUOUS 10,700 SF BLOCK

A tenant taking all 10,700 square feet receives one contiguous industrial and flex block with two drive-in doors and approximately 19-foot clear height. The full building is $5,796 per month base plus NNN.

CANDIDATE TENANTS

- Light manufacturing or assembly operation.
- Warehousing and distribution user.
- Storage-intensive business needing volume and height.
- Larger contractor or equipment operation consolidating space.

WHY THE SPACE FITS

- Contiguous Block: One user can occupy the full 10,700 SF.
- Storage Volume: Clear height supports cubic capacity.
- Two Doors: Dual access can separate material movement.
- Distribution Position: Regional access supports delivery routes.

Use verification: Prospective tenants should confirm zoning, permitted uses, utilities, measurements, and building condition before committing to a lease.
