Denver South has the highest concentration of high tech and corporate workers in the metropolitan area. The City of Lone Tree has multiple retail, healthcare and class A office projects.

The 400-acre urban core on RidgeGate's east side will continue to grow and evolve over the next few decades, situated around two light rail stations and mixed-use transit-oriented development. The core area of the Lone Tree City Center will span 32 blocks, with up to 8 -10 million square feet of office, hotel, residential, retail, dining and entertainment offerings, all walkable to the City Center Rail Station. Corporate campus sites will be strategically flanked along the I-25 frontage. Urban style homes will accommodate approximately 5,000 residents in the district. Up to 35,000 new jobs will be created as the Lone Tree City Center comes to life.

CONNECTIVITY

The City Center benefits from two light rail stations on the Southeast Light Rail Line: the Lone Tree City Center Station (City Center Station) and the end-of-line RidgeGate Parkway Station (RidgeGate Station).

You'll find easy access to airports from RidgeGate. Denver International Airport, the largest airport in the region, is located just 30 minutes northeast of RidgeGate. Centennial Airport is a quick 10 minutes away and is the major reliever airport in the region for corporate and charter flights.

Plus, RidgeGate's south-central location along the I-25 corridor makes it a straight shot north to downtown Denver, or south to Colorado Springs.

HOME

As a mixed-use district, Lone Tree City Center will offer 2,500 urban style residences within this walkable downtown area. Homes will be conveniently centered around a 4.6 acre public park. There will also be other diverse residential villages within walking distance, accented with parks and plaza for outdoor movies, farmers' markets and other community events.

VILLAGE CENTER

The mixed-use Village Center is located in the heart of the east side of RidgeGate, where RidgeGate Parkway splits into separate one-way roads. This Center will provide vibrant commercial, retail, dining and civic amenities to serve local residents, as well as the neighboring Central Village, Southeast Villages and Lyric at RidgeGate. Village Center is accessible via car along RidgeGate Parkway, and is walkable from all of the estimated 8,000 residential units that will be built on the east side of RidgeGate.
